The Olympic Games of 2008 gave us a ringside seat on 21st century China. Now, six months later, join us for another great opportunity to learn about Chinese culture. We have planned a sumptuous Chinese New Year feast on the last day of that traditional Chinese two-week long holiday. We'll dine at what was voted by Dallas Observer readers the "best Chinese restaurant in Dallas" in 2007.

Join us to usher in the Year of the Ox, a year traditionally devoted to the hard work aimed at consolidating the glitzy progress of the outgoing Year of the Rat. There will be an interactive presentation on the Chinese zodiac and what it can tell us about the year ahead as China builds on its new image as an Olympic host.

Teresa Wilkin, Discover China Exchange Director for the September 2009 FFI visit, will show slides and a preview the trip. If you are thinking about visiting China, this is the perfect opportunity to get information about the upcoming FFI exchange. And even if you are not contemplating a visit to China, this event is sure to be a fun way to cap off our conference!
